AARP welcomes the City of Sheboygan as a Wisconsin Age-Friendly Community

Madison, Wisconsin – AARP Wisconsin today announces that the City of Sheboygan has been officially accepted as a Wisconsin member of the AARP Network of Age-Friendly Communities.

The Network is an affiliate of the World Health Organization's Age-Friendly Cities and Communities Program, an international effort launched in 2006 to help cities prepare for rapid population aging and the parallel trend of urbanization. The program has participating communities in more than 20 nations.

The AARP Network of Age-Friendly Communities helps participating communities become great places for all ages by adopting such features as safe, walkable streets; better housing and transportation options; access to key services; and opportunities for residents to participate in civic and community activities.

"We are honored to receive AARP's Age-Friendly Designation," said Mayor Mike Vandersteen. "It's a testament to our Senior Activity Center, the City Development and Planning Department, and all the other areas of our community that touch the lives of our seniors, be it our businesses, the library, and the rest of our truly vibrant community."

Sam Wilson, State Director of AARP Wisconsin, said, "We're incredibly pleased to welcome the City of Sheboygan as a member of the AARP Network of Age-Friendly Communities. Sheboygan joins 182 other communities across the country that are actively working toward making their town, city, or county a great place for people of all ages.

"We know from our research at AARP that 80 percent of older adults want to stay in their communities as they age, and Sheboygan is at the forefront of making sure our communities are not only great places to grow up and work, but are also thriving areas for older adults."

The City of Sheboygan has taken the initial steps to enter the Network, which demonstrates its commitment to actively engage in an inclusive cycle of continuous improvement in the "8 Domains of Livability" that the World Health Organization has identified as influencing the health and quality of life of older adults.
